Y11 Ethics Remote Learning

In Ethics lessons we often cover sensitive topics which are difficult to learn about remotely. So the work we have set here is slightly different to the work you would have done in class. However, this work will promote some of the general aims of ethics:

- To promote engagement with current affairs
- To take care of our mental health

With this in mind, we would like you to find a happy news story. You can find it one of these places:

- The Day (username: meadowhead. password: meadowhead)
- BBC news (you can either go on the BBC website or watch the news on TV or on iPlayer)

You can present the work in whichever way you wish, but you need to include the following:

- A title
- At least 3 things you have learnt about the topic
- At least 2 reasons why you found this topic interesting
- A question you have about this topic.
- A picture (optional)

Please upload your work to ClassCharts. You will need to find the activity on ClassCharts called, "Please upload self-isolation work here". You may need to change the date on ClassCharts to find it. If you self-isolate for two ethics lessons, please complete this activity twice.
