Dear Parents/Carers

RE: Social Media Trend

We have been informed by the police and through media reports that a social media trend has emerged involving messages that attempt to organise anti-social behaviour and “fights” between students from different schools. While these messages appear to have started in London, they have unfortunately begun circulating in other parts of the country as well.

As a school, we are working closely with the relevant authorities to monitor the situation, and other secondary schools in the local area are doing the same. At present, we have no indication that this issue is directly connected to Meadowhead. However, as a precaution, we are remaining vigilant.

We expect our students not to participate in or engage with any such activity and to remain responsible in their behaviour both in school and online. This message will be reinforced with students, and we would appreciate the support of parents and carers in discussing this at home.

Any student found misusing social media to share or promote such content will face serious consequences, and we will not hesitate to involve the police where necessary.

Encouraging or promoting violence can constitute a criminal offence.

We will continue to work closely with local schools and authorities to ensure this remains nothing more than an online trend and does not affect our community.

Thank you for your continued support.

Yours faithfully,

Mrs K Grewal-Joy
